Assignment: Explain your data or research

The working group sessions are designed to assist participants in identifying the policy relevance of their research, developing a plan for communicating their findings to a policy audience, and preparing a presentation for the final day of the workshop. In order to prepare for the working group session, please fill out this worksheet and be prepared to discuss the following questions.

Session 1: Explaining your research. This working group session is focused on thinking about how to explain your research. Please answer the following questions:

1. What is your research about? What is the issue or problem that you seek to solve or address?

2. What is your hypothesis?

3. Briefly describe your methodology. Try to use nontechnical terms.

4. What are some of your key findings or expected findings?
