Purpose
This session contributes to the module learning objectives by asking participants to identify recent research and data that is relevant to their advocacy topic.

Time Required
- 30-45 mins.

Activity Description
This worksheet can be assigned as homework or during the workshop period. Participants are asked to find at least three recent data points or research findings. In order to successfully complete the worksheet, and gather information necessary to completing subsequent exercises, participants will need access to sources of data such as: DHS reports; Census Reports; recent research studies (such as journal articles or research reports); and/or the PRB website, including www.worldpopdata.org. Participants should be assigned to work individually to identify recent data that is relevant to their research topic. It would be particularly useful for participants to have internet access to complete some online research. Facilitator(s) should circulate through participants while they research, checking in one-on-one to ensure that they are focusing their time on finding valuable data.

Key Learning Concept(s)
- Selecting appropriate data for an advocacy topic.
- Ensuring that they keep track of the source of their data to cite.
